Henwood, A

May 1918

(06)

374

Henwood, A

May 15th, 1918

Dr. A. Henwood,

Box 41,

Cynwyd, Near Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Dr. Henwood:

I was glad to hear from you this morning and it so happened that I met Miss Laird this afternoon and she was speaking very cordially concerning you.

I have referred your letter to our Professor of Chemistry, but I am sorry that there is nothing in Toronto that we can offer you. At present three of our full professors in Chemistry are doing war service and their places are being filled by the other men, a state of affairs which is only possible because of the greatly reduced numbers of students owing to the war. Another gentleman came to see me recently in the hope that there might be some opening for him in Chemistry, but I was unable to discover any position for which he might become a candidate. I should think that during the war you would find opportunities as a chemist in some of the war work and probably at the close of the war positions in teaching will open up. I hope that you will soon find something suitable.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.

May 15/18